

Probation, ARD and Parole Violations

If you have been arrested and receive probation, even a minor, unconscious violation could result in a revocation of your probation and a trip to prison or substantial fines. If a probation agent serves you with a warrant, your time to respond is extremely limited and requires the guidance of an experienced lawyer able to protect your rights and adequately represent your interests before the court. Many times the defendant will be picked up without notice for something as simple as an alleged Protection from Abuse action or minor misdemeanor. In you are facing a probation or parole violation it is imperative that you contact an experienced lawyer prior to your Gagnon I hearing.

Criminal Defense Attorney Jason A. Jenkins has developed a respected practice assisting Pennsylvania residents to fight probation and parole revocations. Our clients receive personal attention, a quick response and 10 years of positive results from an experienced Pennsylvania criminal defense lawyer.

Parole / Probation violation cases will require careful examination to ensure that your situation is adequately addressed by the court and your case decided according to the facts and the law alone. Failure to dispute a warrant for revocation of probation with an attorney could have you back in jail immediately, leaving your family struggling to cope financially while you make your way through a lengthy and confusing appeals process. At the Law Offices of Jason A. Jenkins we will fight for you at probation and parole hearings to petition the judge for a continuance of probation after a revocation of, ideally, a termination of the probation.
